

Fr. Paul's questions to the people for prayer and contemplation in this new year.

from Homily, Jan 2, 2020

How will we be from Christ this year?

How will the love of God in the person of Jesus radiate through us into the world in which we live today?

How will we be those people through whom God draws to himself all who are seeking this deeper life, this better way of living?

How will we become like the Jerusalem of old that sign for the nations to which people can come experience the radiance of the love of God?

How will we be the people that can help draw others into the one body of Christ, so that all can see that all nations belong together in this community which Jesus offers us, built upon the love he has for us, and sharing with us the life of Father, Son, and Holy Spirit?
